

Life and Society

GUANGZHOU

A & P:	Good morning Principal, Vice Principals, teachers and fellow schoolmates, we are from Class 2A.
P:	I'm Pansy.
A:	I'm Alain. Pansy, do you know in the past decades, Guangdong has set a model of Chinese modernization for the rest of the country, and the model also has global repercussions.
P:	Yes, for example, last week, President Xi Jinping made his fourth tour of inspection to Guangdong. Every time he visited Guangdong, he laid down new requirements for its opening up and reform. This time, he demanded that Guangdong summon up the might of the entire province to carry off building the Guangdong–Hong Kong–Macao Greater Bay Area so that it becomes the strategic fulcrum of the new development pattern, the demonstration site of high-quality development and the leading site of Chinese-style Modernisation. Can you tell us more details, Alain?
A:	Sure. From Zhanjiang to Maoming to Guangzhou, Xi traveled thousands of kilometers across the western part of the province and visited mangrove forests, ports, enterprises, and factories, while having in-depth exchanges with ordinary factory workers, farmers, and technicians. The trip provided a direction for the China's reform and Chinese modernization, and let the world learn Chinese modernization is different from the Western development path.
A & P:	That's the end of our sharing, thank you.

